

FOWLER CERTAIN WIDE SUPPORT

Says His Currency Bill Will Be Great Campaign
Issue.

"My currency bill will be the great issue of the coming national campaign," declared Representative Fowler of New Jersey to a party of friends. "The country is absolutely for my proposition, and it is against the Aldrich measure. I have received many letters, have been all over the country, and know whereof I speak."

Mr. Fowler frankly concedes that his bill and the Aldrich measure have fundamentally different purposes. Mr. Fowler feels that his bill proposes a currency system on modern lines; he thinks the Aldrich measure proposes merely to put another patch on the present patchwork system of currency. But he is firmly of the opinion that, having now been brought squarely before the country, the currency question will remain at the front until it is settled by some plan which will go to the bottom of the whole matter.

The proposal of Senator Aldrich, to have a currency commission appointed by Congress, is regarded by Mr. Fowler as in the nature of a large concession to people who, like himself, believe revision of the money system from the bottom up is absolutely necessary. He considers the Aldrich measure as such a commission the Fowler bill would have an excellent chance to be made the basis of the proposed system, and therefore the measure proposed by Aldrich, for a commission, is likely to have the enthusiastic support of the Fowler people and the Aldrich plan.

Indeed, the proposal of a currency commission by the men who drew the Aldrich measure, is now regarded as the most adroit of moves, because it will help line up for that measure people who would not otherwise be so ready to support it. Further currency legislation was to be had soon.

DE CHAULNES USED FOR TAILOR'S BILL

Londoner Wants $1,345 and Interest for Clothes
Bought in 1901.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Emanuel Theodore Bernard, Marie de Chaules de Luxmes d'Alley, Duc de Chaules et Ploquigny, who recently wedded Miss Theodore Shonts, is himself in Europe and cannot be interviewed about the suit brought against him by James Cavanaugh, a London and Paris tailor, through James F. Hannigan, as assignee, for clothing alleged to have been bought, but not paid for, by the Duc in 1901.

The London tailor claims $1,345 for clothes made and delivered to the Duc de Chaules, with $55 for interest from 1901.

The merits of the claim itself was not gone into yesterday in the City Court before Judge Conlan.

The London tailor wrote Attorney Gates Hamburger, said the lawyer, that he had heard the Duc had married an American heiress and that now ought to be a ripping good time to press the bill.

Mr. Hamburger then began to watch the society columns to find out the movements of the Duc de Chaules. He found that the Duc had come to New York in March and was staying at the home of Theodore P. Shonts, his father-in-law, at 123 East Thirty-fifth street.

Mr. Hamburger sent to the Shonts home March 15 Mayer Towner, a law clerk and veteran process server. He waited out on the sidewalk, and he says in an affidavit that a chauffeur pointed out to him the Duc de Chaules. He served the papers on the Duc; he swears in his affidavit, at 7:40 o'clock.

Now comes the Baron Louis de Conde, said to be related to and similar in appearance to the Duke, who makes affidavit that on March 15 about 6 o'clock somebody put some papers in his hand at the Shonts home, which he later found out were intended for the Duke.

Moreover, the Duc de Chaules et de Ploquigny swears in an affidavit that papers were served on him on March 15, but that he did see a summons in the Shonts home on that day which had been given into the hands of the Baron de Conde.

And then the Duke sailed for Europe on March 18 along with the Baron de Conde.
